- Health & Environment Funders Network (HEFN):
  - HEFN paper on “Building Power through Data Sharing: Issues and Opportunities for Environmental Health and Justice Funders.” It includes examples of projects where community organizations generate and use information about environmental conditions to generate change, and it outlines issues funders might think about in funding this kind of community science/data-sharing work.
  - Milbank Quarterly Review article summarizing literature about communications on health equity. It makes very similar points about the "canon" of a hierarchy of accepted evidence.
